PLANTS IN THE RAMAYANA AND THEIR AYURVEDIC SIGNIFICANCE

Madiraju Sushma

Research Scholar, National Sanskrit University, Tirupati

ABSTRACT

The Rāmāyaṇa, composed by Sage Vālmīki, is not only a spiritual and historical epic but also a rich source of information on flora and their medicinal significance. Many plants mentioned in the Rāmāyaṇa are revered in Ayurveda for their healing properties. This article explores key plants cited in the text, along with their contextual roles and Ayurvedic values, supported by Sanskrit verses and explanations.
