Bio

Julia took Spanish at school while growing up because it was the only language offered. Her parents talk to her in Hindi at home, but she always replied in English. When she graduated high school her family planned a trip to visit their extended family in India. During the trip Julia realized she felt alienated from her culture because of the language barrier, she couldn't even hold a conversation with her grandmother or cousins. Julia's university offers Hindi as a language being taught, but because of the lack of students trying to learn Hindi the classes only go up to an intermediate level. Julia finds the class too easy because of her background, but doesn't know any other way to increase her language skills than this class.
