Leadership training based on frameworks taught at the Harvard Kennedy School and Harvard Business School

Duration: April 25 - 27, 2019 (3 days)

Venue: Shangri-la at the Fort Manila, Philippines

Investment: USD $1400

CONTENT OVERVIEW

The 21st century has created a new workplace filled with opportunities, threats, and challenges, in which solutions and the right path forward are not self-evident. To be an effective leader, one must adapt to fast-changing and uncertain environments, manage the dynamics around complex challenges, while scaling a process for teams and organizations to learn and innovate.

Adaptive Leadership: Leading an Agile Workforce for the 21st Century is a 3-day program of the Adaptive Leadership at Work series by the Center for Asia Leadership. The program trains participants to understand and systematically undertake a process of transformation and continuous renewal in their teams, departments, and organizations. Participants will walk away with a toolkit to employ methods of stakeholder mapping, perspective-taking, interventions, and strategic communication techniques that help identify roadblocks, garner perspectives, gain insights, make progress, and develop an agile workforce.

Participants will engage in plenary sessions, interactive workshops, and case discussions with Teaching Fellows from Harvard University and other world-leading institutions. By the end of the program, participants will learn to interpret the dynamics of power and progress, and respond constructively and proactively towards driving transformation and building an adaptive culture.

This program introduces the Adaptive Leadership framework developed at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. Teaching Fellows will discuss not just case studies from Harvard University but challenges and dilemmas faced by Harvard alumni as well. The program also employs aspects of the Design Thinking process from the Stanford University Design School (Hasso Plattner Institute of Design) to expose learners to creative problem solving methods; as well as the Immunity to Change framework from the Harvard Graduate School of Education, to help participants reflect on their own personal barriers to change.
