

Na kahāpaṇavassena,
Titti kāmesu vijjati,
Appassādā dukhā kāmā
Iti viññāya paṇḍito.

(Dhp. V. 186)

No contentment is attained in one's desire, even with a shower of gold coins. The wise man knows that desires are of little delight, and (most) grievous.