Media sources report that contact has been lost with Sriwijaya Air Flight SJ-182, a Boeing 737-524 with flight registration PK-CLC, in an unspecified area of the Java Sea, northwest off the coast of Jakarta. The loss of contact comes immediately after the aircraft dropped from around 10,000 feet to 250 feet in altitude. The flight was traveling from Soekarno-Hatta International Airport (CGK) in Jakarta to Supadio International Airport (PNK) in Pontianak. The number of passengers and crew aboard was not immediately reported. No additional details on the status of the aircraft or passengers, or the cause of the incident, have been immediately reported. Travelers are advised to contact their travel provider for flight-specific information. Expect related disruptions.
