Cuisine Cuisine (Beijing) Wins 4 Awards at Time Out Beijing Magazine's Food Awards 2012

Cuisine Cuisine (Beijing) has been recognised by Time Out Beijing for their outstanding cuisine and impeccable service, taking home Merit 4 awards in the following categories Best Service, Best Chinese Fine Dining, Best New Restaurant and Chef of the Year. This follows Best New Arrival, awarded by Hurun Best of the Best Awards 2012 earlier in the year.

The recognitions which came within just 6 months of its opening highlight Cuisine Cuisine's commitment to bringing diners authentic Cantonese cuisine and meeting the expectations of even the most discerning diners.

"It's very encouraging to be recognised for our dedication to bring a distinctive Cantonese dining experience to Greater China, through exquisite menus coupled with thoughtful and attentive service. We are determined to maintain the momentum and see Cuisine Cuisine become the new haute cuisine destination in Beijing," said Ben Man, Vice President – PRC Operations and Project Development.

Time Out magazine offers comprehensive listings on events in film, theatre, fashion, literature and other cultural happenings, as well as the latest news on night life and eating out in the world's greatest cities. Time Out Food Awards 2012 in Beijing enters its 5th year and invited foodies and food critics who have eaten their way around the world to join its judging panel for the Award.

Cuisine Cuisine continues the tradition of culinary excellence and employs only those ingredients of superb quality and utmost freshness. Executive Chef Chow Ngai has over 20 years of experience under his belt and had been the executive chef at various renowned Cantonese restaurants in Hong Kong and the Mainland. He is a master when it comes to delicate creations including bird's nest, abalone and shark's fin dishes. Keen to incorporate elements of the modern day food culture in his culinary creations, he continues to reinvent classic dishes and even formulated his own recipe for making sauces from purely natural ingredients.
