Every professional is interested in career growth. Navigating from being a mid-level professional to a senior executive can be the most challenging and least straight-forward part of your career journey.

There are so many moving parts in today's job market that you simply must have a clear plan for how you will climb the corporate ladder.

In today's competitive world, companies want their employees to be effective communicators, great people managers and also have business acumen. It is time to learn to see the 'big picture' and think like the top management.

In this intensive, personalized course you will benefit from executive coaching, introspective experiences, case study discussions and assignments. Ultimately this course is about setting yourself up for success.
